

ABSTRACT

In order to improve outcomes for a variety of medical conditions that involve home treatment, medical packs are provided that can include a set number of medications and other medical supplies the amounts of which that are selected for a specific period of home treatment. The medical packs can also include instructions using photographs and a patient log. Return of the pack in a return visit to the treating medical professional can provide a means for evaluating patient compliance.